Taste Information

The longer fermentation of high-grown Colombian Arabica delivers a particularly juicy and fruity, sweet cup. Pairs perfectly with milk.

The Story

The cooler climate of the high-altitude Colombia Aguadas mountains means the coffee takes longer to ferment. The classic washed coffee processing method is complex and time-consuming, but up here it calls for even more skill.

This fully-washed coffee is sourced in the high-altitude region of Aguadas, in Colombia.

We separate this coffee in 2 batches for roasting. Most of it is given a fast and light roast, and a smaller portion is roasted a little longer and deeper to add complexity to the cup.
